Final exams are stressful for many students--and it's no wonder. Finals are designed to allow students to demonstrate how much information they have retained from an entire semester. When it comes to preparing for finals, every subject is a little bit different, so you should specialize your study skills for each particular exam.

You'll study in short bursts, called blocks. Each block focuses on one unit (subject) and is only four weeks long, with up to four days between blocks to recharge and prepare for the next. We break the year up into 10 four-week blocks: two semesters of four blocks each, plus two optional blocks over winter and summer.
